100 FEARED BURNED TO DEATH IN WELSH MINE EXPLOSION

AIR LINER CRASHES

SHORTLY AFTER FUELLING SIR ALAN
COBHAM'S PLANE

FOUR OCCUPANTS
INCINERATED

Non-Stop Flight To India Started

London, Yesterday.

Sir Alan Cobham and Squadron-Leader Helmore took off from Portsmouth at 6.32 a.m. to-day on their attempted 5,200 non-stop flight to India. They plan to re-fuel in the air at four points. Their plane, the "Airspeed Courier," was not fully loaded with petrol when they took off, but they planned to take on more fuel from an air tanker off Selsey Bill. This would give sufficient petrol to reach Malta. They hope to reach Karachi in 48 hours.

The air liner which fuelled Sir Alan Cobham's plane crashed into a field in Buckinghamshire and its four occupants were incinerated. — Reuter.

FIERCE FIGHTING IN FUKIEN

30,000 Nanking Troops
Now Massed

RED DRIVE FAILS

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday.

Fierce fighting is raging between the Nanking troops and Communist forces at Lienching, Western Fukien, without any decisive result, according to reports from Amoy.

The Nanking detachments are commanded by General Chiang Ting-wen, the Commander-in-Chief, and the vanguard is led by General Wei Li-huang, one of the European trained Chinese army officers. The total forces are said to be over 30,000 officers and men.

KWEICHOW REDS HARASSED

Extermination "Only A Matter Of Days"

Canton, Yesterday.

Reports received here yesterday from Kweichow state that the Communist bandits under Hsiao Kuk, which recently caused disturbances in that province, are nearing the end of their tether.

The joint forces of Hunan, Kwangsi, Yunnan, and Kweichow are now besieging the outlaws. Most of them made off after defeats. According to the reports, their extermination is only a matter of days. — Central Press.

MERCHANDISE SHARES IN MINOR BOOM

New York, Yesterday. — Merchandise shares are attracting buying due to the excellent retail trade. — United Press, per S. E. Levy and Company.

TRAPPED IN BLAZING SHAFT

16 CHARRED BODIES RECOVERED

SEALING OF PIT MAY BE NECESSARY

SMALL HOPE OF RESCUE

LONDON, YESTERDAY.

TRAPPED IN A BLAZING SHAFT FOLLOWING AN EXPLOSION AT THE GRESFORD COLLIERY, NEAR WREXHAM, THIS MORNING, MORE THAN 100 MINERS ARE FEARED TO HAVE LOST THEIR LIVES IN ONE OF THE WORST BRITISH COAL MINE DISASTERS IN RECENT YEARS.

So far, only 16 bodies, most of them charred almost beyond recognition, have been recovered, and rescue efforts have been suspended until the fire has been suffocated.

The disaster has plunged the tiny Welsh town into deep gloom, and harrowing scenes are being witnessed at the pithead as almost the entire population await news of the entombed men. THE EXPLOSION OCCURRED EARLY THIS MORNING, AND BEFORE THE FIERCE FIRE RENDERED THE PROGRESS OF THE RESCUERS IMPOSSIBLE, SIX CHARRED BODIES WERE BROUGHT TO THE SURFACE. IT WAS THEN THOUGHT THAT 160 WERE STILL ENTOMBED, WITH LITTLE HOPE OF BEING RESCUED ALIVE.

Later figures, however, estimate the total feared dead at 100, as there is little hope of the rescue parties saving their fellow-workers. Doctors and nurses have been rushed to the scene to attend to the injured in the event of the rescue workers reaching the entrapped men in time.

The management of the colliery contemplate sealing up the pit to allow the fire to burn out more quickly. — Reuter.

STRIKE END IN SIGHT IF BOARD GIVEN CONTROL

SILK INSTITUTE IN AGREEMENT

SEAMEN MAY BE NEXT CALLED OUT

Washington, Yesterday.

It was reliably learned yesterday that the textile strike would end prior to the week-end if the industry accepts the Mediation Board's recommendations.

Labour officials are willing to arbitrate as soon as they are assured that the industry will do likewise. It is noteworthy that the Silk Institute has agreed, while the Cotton Institute has promised only consideration.

A New York message states that more than 4,000 unlicensed seamen have been ordered to strike on October 8 as a protest against the general conditions of American vessels.

The order exempts only the Eastern and Black Diamond Lines and tankers. — United Press, per S. E. Levy and Co.

General Strike Threat If Textile Fails

New York, Earlier.

While the Textile Union chiefs are gathered at Washington to consider peace proposals, the textile strike is being continued unabated. Strike leaders claim that there has been no weakening of the strike since yesterday and that additional mills are close. (Continued on Page 17).

U.S. RAILROAD OFFICIALS GET TOGETHER

New York, Yesterday. — United States railway officials have organized an Association of American railways, designed to study problems affecting the railroad industry. — United Press, per S. E. Levy and Company.

The bridal group, taken after the wedding of Miss Lorna Margaret Tolan to Mr. Cyril Frederick Wood, at St. John's Cathedral yesterday afternoon. The bridesmaids were Miss Eileen (Pat) Anslow and Miss Dorothy Tolan. Mr. C. B. Easterbrook was best man. (King's Studio).

Irked by his quiet surroundings, Max Baer, world heavy weight boxing champion and self-admitted "perfect lover," has departed from "Lake Tahoe, Calif., for Los Angeles, where he intends to renew the courtship of his former wife, Dorothy Dunbar, one-time motion picture actress. Miss Dunbar, who divorced Baer in 1933, complaining he neglected her, is shown above with Maxie in a happier day.

GENERAL O'DUFFY RESIGNS

Acute Differences With Colleagues

NEW BLUE SHIRT HEAD

Dublin, Yesterday.

General O'Duffy has resigned the Presidency and membership of the United Ireland Party together with the leadership of the Blue Shirts, and is succeeded in the respective positions by the former President of the Irish Free State, Mr. Cosgrave and Commandant Cronin.

The step follows General O'Duffy's acute differences with other members of the party over the collection of land annuities and General O'Duffy's policy of fostering the Blue Shirt organization in Northern Ireland. — Reuter.

Copper Restriction Probable At International Conference

London, Yesterday.

Copper should benefit considerably by the news of the meeting of the international conference of the world's producers which is likely to be held in New York sometime in October with the object of the introduction of some form of restriction.

It is pointed out, however, that satisfactory results are only likely to be obtained if producers other than American can reach a complete agreement with each other before the New York discussions. (Continued on Page 20).

WEATHER FORECAST

Fine generally, with fresh north-east winds, was the weather forecast for to-day, as issued by the Royal Observatory last night.

YACHT RACE SENSATION

VANDERBILT
CABLES FOR AID
FROM YANKEE

NEW SPINNACKER
TRANSFERRED

Both Skippers Full Of Confidence

Newport, R.I., Yesterday.

A frantic S.O.S., from the Vanderbilt Syndicate, owners of Rainbow, defender of America's Cup against Mr. T. O. M. Sopwith's Endeavour, to the Boston Syndicate's Yankee and her handlers—the craft and crew which were ousted from the honour of defending the world's premier yachting trophy—caused a tremendous sensation throughout Newport to-day.

When ashore Mr. H. Vanderbilt obviously realized that, despite his triumph in the third completed race of the series, he was up against more than he could handle in trying to beat the Endeavour, and that the spinacker designed for Rainbow was definitely no good.

He immediately telephoned to Boston, resulting in the post haste despatch of the Yankee's spinacker to Newport, and an additional two tons of ballast was placed on board the Rainbow to-day.

Mr. Sopwith was delighted with his new Genoa jib, and now both skippers believe that their craft are unbeatable, although the betting is still in favour of the Endeavour, to-day's price being 7 to 5 on the challenger.

CONDITIONS FAVOUR ENDEAVOUR

All 11 a.m. to-day there was a moderate sea with a slight swell and a 14 knot breeze from the east-south-east, which was inclined to be equally—the kind of weather considered to be favourable to Mr. T. O. M. Sopwith's Endeavour, which has won two of the three completed races to date.

The first leg of to-day's course will be to the east, the second south-west by south, and the third north-north-west half-west. The first leg will be to the windward. The race started at 11.40 a.m. standard time. Both yachts were under the main-sails, staysails, with double-crews jib-sails. Rainbow, with Mr. H. Vanderbilt at the helm, crossed the line slightly ahead of Endeavour, and to the windward. Both vessels were late in starting. (Continued on Page 17).

STONEHENGE DONOR PASSES

London, Yesterday.

The death occurred to-day of Sir Cecil Herbert Edward Chubb, 1st Baronet of Stonehenge, at the age of 68. Sir Cecil, who was called to the Bar in 1907, presented Stonehenge to the nation. — Reuter.

The anticyclone over the Yangtze Valley is increasing slowly in intensity. A trough of relatively low pressure extends from Indo-China to the Pacific, east of the Philippines, according to a report from the Royal Observatory last night.

SHORT STORY.

HIDE YOUR EYES

By EDWARD ACHESON

DR. KRESSMAN made a note on the pad before him and leaned back in the chair. What was she talking about now? Her misunderstood childhood again? She was an exhausting patient, this Mrs. Benson. Spoiled. Too much money. But a hard integrated personality.

Suffering from a compulsion neurosis. Unable to stop counting. Common symptom... Counts steps, up and down, counts trees, rows of books, shuts her eyes and imagines series of things to count... Counts in her sleep... So simple if it could only be explained to the patient... Counts so she won't have to think of something, something she doesn't want to think about, something she's subconsciously determined she won't think about... But eventually she'll have to. If she keeps up the analysis, eventually it will come out, this despicable thing she's trying to hide from herself... Then she'll stop counting... Then there'll be nothing to cover up... Talking about her father now? No her husband. She should have no difficulty in that relationship, the two men are so much alike... Nature's method of keeping the strain pure. Women always turning instinctively to men like their fathers. Well, she had... this Mrs. Benson. Her trouble wasn't as simple as that... Something deeper... Let her talk. The hour was almost up anyway.

Dr. Kressman stifled a yawn. He was very tired. He hadn't slept for a number of nights. Something kept gnawing at him. It wasn't true. He knew it wasn't true. But he couldn't get free of it. It waited beside his bed like a sentinel. And when he glanced over at his wife before switching off the light, he knew he wasn't going to sleep. And he didn't. He lay there, staring into the darkness, explaining away his fears.

His wife's sudden interest in sculpture, modelling. Most likely a sublimation. They had no children. The maternal instinct rechannelled into creative art. A natural outlet. Nothing whatsoever to do with this fellow Newman. Newman. Interesting word psychologically. Newman. Her animation. Had she been more animated lately? More completely alive?... Physical, entirely. She'd been ill. Now she was better.

She just felt more poignantly the value of what she'd regained. And her renewed interest in clothes wasn't significant. Of course not. She was young. Fifteen years younger than he was. And youth did things by fits and starts. Trial and error, part of the adjustment process.

And then the doctor would get up very quietly and go down stairs to the sideboard. He'd pour out a drink and hold it up to the light, mustering a smile: "Physician, heal thyself! For he knew the human mind and he knew rationalisation when he met it. He was trying to explain this Newman chap out of existence. He knew knew what he was doing, but he couldn't stop doing it. Rationalising him into existence, really. Then he'd take a second drink and go back to bed and lie there and stare into the stillness. He was very tired.

He yawned against and looked quickly to see whether Mrs. Benson had noticed. She hadn't. She was flat on her back with her eyes closed, talking, talking, forever. The doctor listened absently. She was back on the theme of "Lady Chatterley's Lover." That book seemed to be an obsession with Mrs. Benson. That was the fifth time she'd brought it up in as many days.

The doctor selected a pencil and waited. Mrs. Benson's voice droned on. "What if she was unfaithful to him... Unfaithful... If that isn't a male word for you... Unfaithful. And Lawrence makes such an unholly fuss over it, talks about it, loves it, rolls in it. I'd like to see his mind psycho-analysed. Probably look like particularly nasty garbage dump on a hot day... Filthy, low, unspeakable."

The doctor made a note of the three words, "Filthy, low, unspeakable." She had used them over and over again.

"And what if she was unfaithful to him? She didn't love him. He didn't love her. Or else he did. I forget. But she didn't love him..."

Dr. Kressman glanced at his clock. Almost five. He'd be through at five. This was his last patient. And he was nearly through with her for good. He drew a circle on his pad, and then a square inside the circle. From the middle of three sides of the square he drew lines into the centre. That was the way one found the centre, where those lines crossed. He was almost at the centre of Mrs. Benson's difficulty. So many lines pointed to it. She loved her husband, and she'd had an affair, either actual or imaginary, with someone else.

Whether it was actual, or whether she'd just thought about it didn't matter. The affair itself didn't matter. It was the fact that Mrs. Benson was ashamed of it, that she fought against admitting it to herself. That was the thing she refused to think about, the thing that kept demanding to be thought about. So she counted.

This last thing, this defence of Lady Chatterley which kept cropping out, was a perfect example of projection. She transferred herself to the person of Lady Chatterley and then argued her cause, because her conscience wouldn't allow her to argue her own directly.

"Five o'clock, Mrs. Benson," the doctor said, trying not to sound relieved.

"Oh," Mrs. Benson said, and was silent. Finally she sat up. "There's no use going on, Doctor. We're not getting anywhere. And it tears me all to pieces. Worse now, really."

"Perhaps it will be," the doctor smiled. "We'll try it once more. To-morrow at the same time."

"Well, once more," Mrs. Benson agreed wearily.

The doctor smiled to himself. They were all that way. The nearer they came to a solution of their problem, the harder they fought against the cure. How passionately we really love our malaises!

"To-morrow, then," he said. He rang for the nurse, who showed Mrs. Benson out. Then the nurse returned. "Your wife is here, Doctor. She's been waiting some time."

"Please bring her in right away."

The doctor leaned back and put his hand over his eyes. Psychoanalysis, what an infant industry! In its present development, like hand-weaving. So hard on the operator. Putting all those varicoloured strands into a warp and woof, finding the pattern, tracing it...

The door opened and Mrs. Kressman came in. "Eugen, my darling, how tired you look!" He opened his eyes. She was glorious. She was youth and beauty and enthusiasm. The doctor felt suddenly old. Old and very tired.

"I've had a hard day," he said. "And I'm looking forward to an evening at home. Wild horses couldn't drag me out to-night."

"Oh, Eugen! I am so sorry. I know."

"Know what?" "That you'd be tired this way. I accepted an invitation for you."

"Oh, sweetheart..." "I know. I shouldn't have. But, really, darling, couldn't you make the effort this once? Mr. Newman's giving a studio party, and I did so want to show you off."

He smiled. Those night-thoughts were so obviously pathetic. She actually wanted him to meet this Newman chap. He felt a little ashamed of himself. "Not I, dear. But you run on and show yourself off. If the man's half an artist, that ought to be more than he can bear."

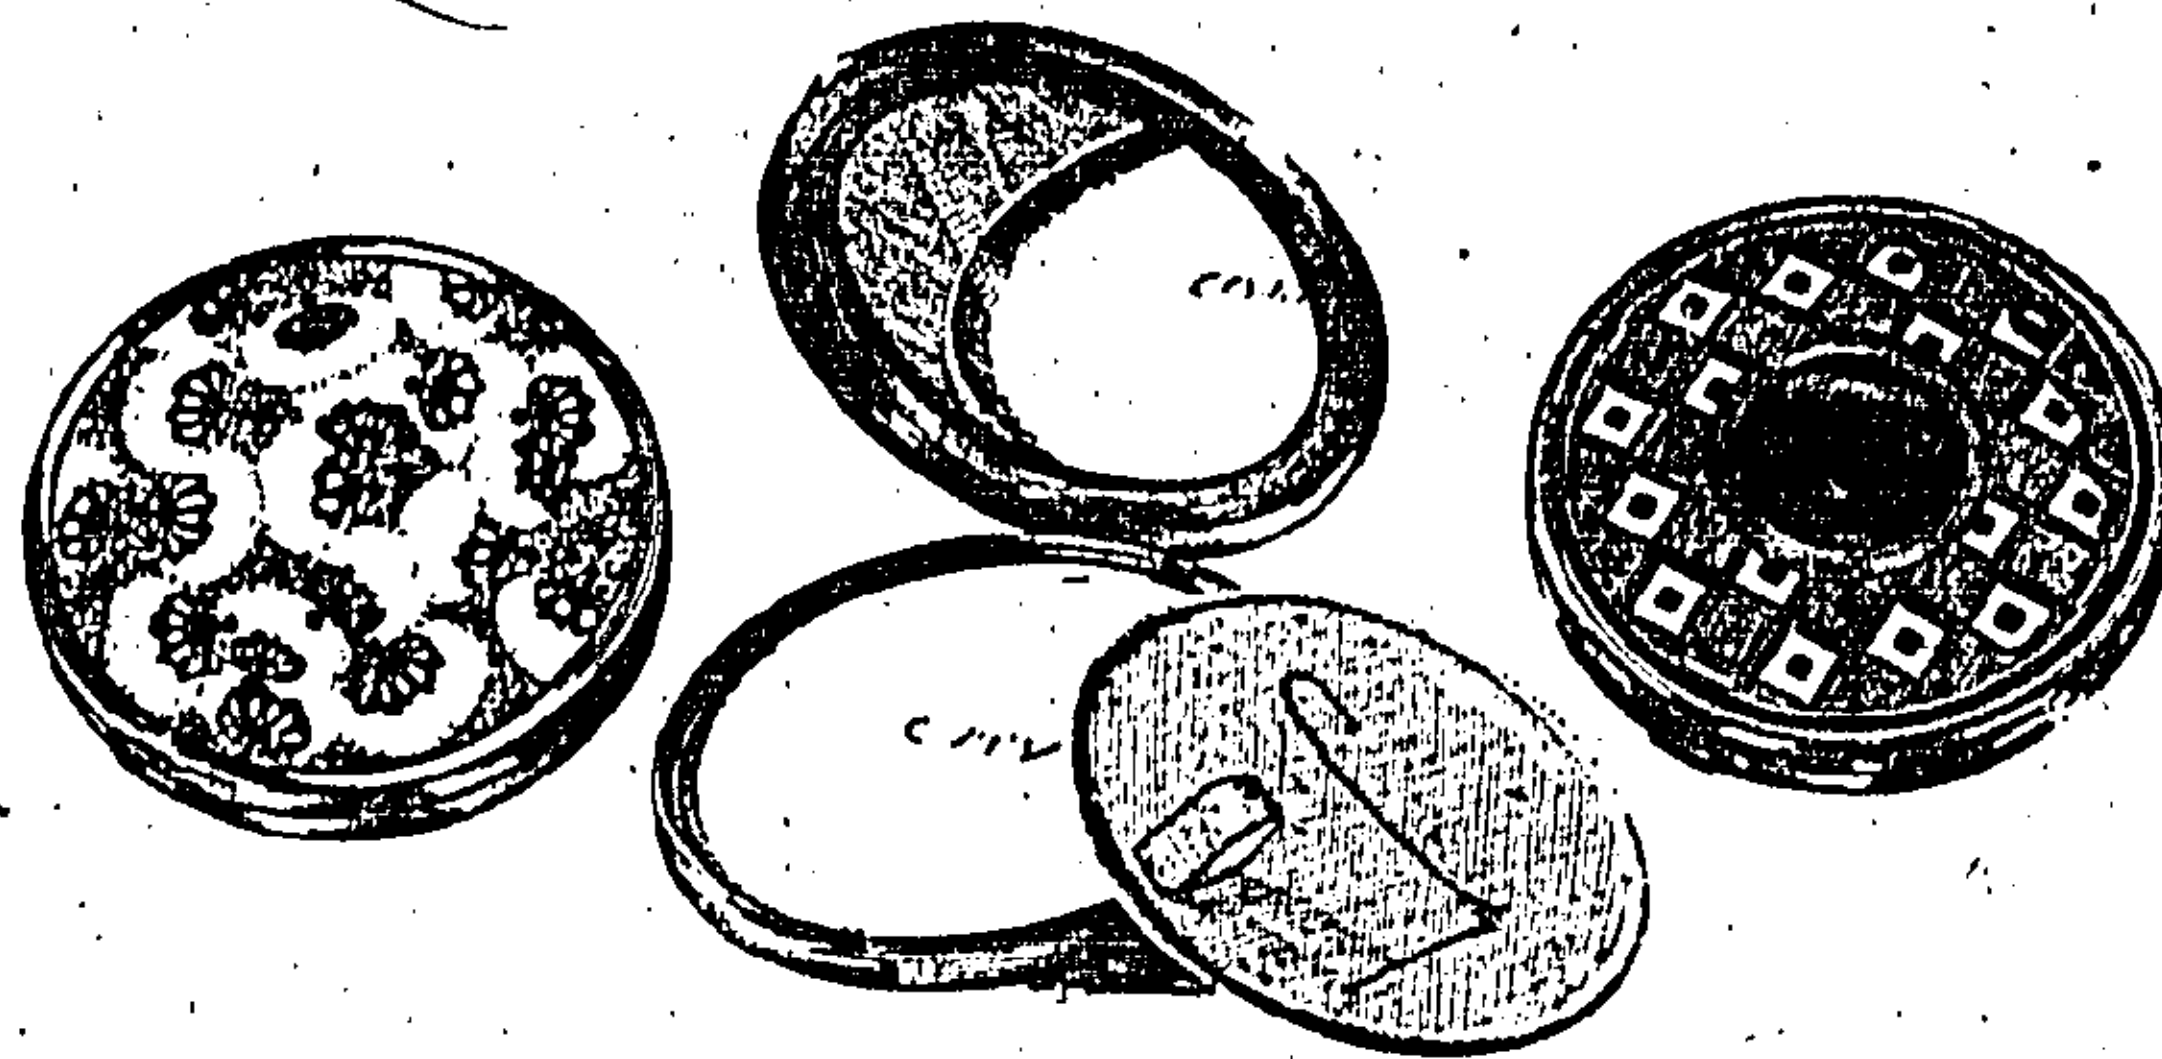

She made a little grimace. "I won't go. Not without you." "Certainly you will, my dear. They'll be counting on you, I know. Everybody does. You've got to show to offer."

"But I don't see why you can't come," she said.

"I've had a wretched day. Really. I have, dear. The patients may think it is hard on them, but I'll take their places any time they'll take mine."

AN ABSOLUTELY NOVEL FORM OF POWDER

COMPRESSED POWDER

By Coty

HAVING THE HANDINESS OF A COMPACT
 TOGETHER WITH THE LIGHTNESS OF LOOSE POWDER

Here is a powder with the appearance of a solid disk, but it is not a "compact," there is no gum used in its manufacture. Compressed powder has taken ten years to perfect, and its secret remains with the house of 'Coty.' It is no longer anything else but pure powder compressed, and is picked up by the puff by an easy brushing made without any pressure.

There is no sticky substance in Coty's compressed powder. It does not scatter from the puff in the wind, nor does it cause greasy lumps on puff or face.

Dazzling Attire At Famous Ball

Passementry Motif
In Gold

GLITTERING CELLOPHANE

Paris.

THE Ball of the Little White Beds, annual charity extravaganza of the Paris Opera, never fails to bring out dazzling feminine attire. Despite the seven-cent franc and the high cost of existing in general, gorgeous costumes appeared from here, there and everywhere.

Among them was a Worth model called "Mon Paris" of dull white silk with a cape trimmed in white fox. The daring back décolletage showed a passementry motif in gold joining the bodice to the skirt.
Says Worth: "The richness of gold ornaments, when discreetly used on an evening gown of sober cut and material is a precious element of trimming." (And this bears our gold stories of the past few days).

Another important gown at the famous ball was in a midnight blue soft crepe with a glittering of cellophane thread woven through it.
The accompanying hip-length coat was in ermine in its natural colour.

Much gold and silver evidenced the "trend" in evening trimmings and materials favored laces,

Hot Weather Beauty

satins, printed chiffons slightly stiffened and gold and silver shot crepes.

TREATMENT BEGINS IN THE NURSERY

CARE OF CHILDREN'S HEALTH

London.

SCIENTIFIC beauty treatment which includes the care of the skin, the eyes, the hair, the teeth and the hands, nowadays begins in the nursery, and the modern Nannie finds that beauty specialists have helpful suggestions for hot weather difficulties.

One definitely maintains that ordinary shampoos are not suitable for the hair of a child, and provides a super-fatted neutral soap. Children's hair sometimes gets brittle in the summer sunshine, in which case a pomade of wool fat can be rubbed into the scalp daily, and this will increase the growth.

When the hair falls out, root and all, this specialist gives his nursery clients a tonic to be massaged on to the head when diluted with an equal part of water.

The drought, coupled with constant dry and dusty wind, hard water and an almost invisible deposit of curdled soap on the face, is making the faces of many town children peel and the skin flake off this summer. Besides being unattractive this leaves the skin open to infection.

A combination treatment of cream and powder will put an end to this, the cream cleansing the dust and soap deposit from the face, and softening the irritated tissues at night, while a dusting with a medicated powder during the day will prevent further peeling and strengthen the skin against these conditions.

For the slightly older girl, or the schoolgirl in her early teens, the modern mother can choose a skin food of a special strength for young faces, and have her daughter taught how to massage it into her face.
An American specialist advises girls in the teens to use nothing but a cleansing cream at night and twice daily, followed by an astringent skin freshening lotion.

NEW USE FOR OLD LACE

SO important has the lighting of reception rooms become in the home decoration scheme of the modern hostess that individual arrangements are now made for all important interiors. These involve detailed plans of a series of lights and shades, painted in the chosen colours, for each room before the hostess will decide upon her electric lighting.

One artist in lighting is asking his clients to bring with them pieces of the chintz or patterned material to be used for curtains and covers in each reception room, in order that shades for table and reading lamps may be designed with an exactly similar pattern upon silk of a harmonising shade. Usually the pattern on the lamp shade is carried out in white upon a ground of the principal room colour.

SPLIT SKIRTS

SPLIT skirts are the biggest fashion news right now. Your new fall daytime dresses will show six and seven-inch slits on the sides and your evening dress are pretty apt to have longer slits either in front or on one side.

SMALLER CUSHIONS

HANDWORK has created a vogue for a number of small cushions, rather than for a few large ones. This is partly in the interests of variety, and partly because small pieces of canvas are easier to handle.

Queen Anne designs embroidered in many coloured silks make some of the prettiest cushions. Quilted cushions are also popular.
One hostess is quilting chintz cushions for the smoking room of her house during the holidays.
This is a practical idea as smoke
does not cling to the shiny surface, which can easily be wiped clean with a damp cloth.

BEAUTY HINTS

UNLESS your doctor advises against it, take at least two baths a day. Use plenty of warm water and soap and finish with a cool, if not cold shower. When you've dried, put on eponge. It's cooling and if you use the perfumed variety, a fine substitute for perfume.

Put away your thick creams and use cooling liquid cleansers instead.
Or wash your face with soap and water and finish with skin tonic.
Even dry skins can stand soap and water in the summertime. Use a minimum of makeup. Many girls go without foundation lotion and some change from cream to dry rouge.

ADVANTAGES OF KLIM

It is uniform in composition, being the combined milk of many herds.

When liquefied the cream does not rise, thus preserving this uniformity in the fluid state.

It is assuredly free of pathogenic bacteria; therefore it is safe.

When liquefied it has a bacteria count which averages less than 3,000 per c.c. and is equivalent in freshness to fluid milk delivered ONE HOUR after pasteurization.

Its finely divided casein precipitates in soft friable curds exposing a much greater surface to digestive action, probably resulting in more complete assimilation. In this respect it resembles breast milk.

The smaller fat globules remain in even emulsion averting irregularities in the formula and in the feeding itself. Further a greater surface is exposed to the action of the digestive juices.

THE ART OF MAKING FRIENDS

Tact A Certain Cure For Too Much Self-Esteem

"Bed-side" Manner Necessary In Every Profession

(By GILBERT FRANKAU)

IN the days of my ebullient youth there hung over my city desk a small picture of a cowboy issuing from his lonely shack on the mountainside and carrying in his either hand a gun. Across this picture was printed, "Live each day so that you can look every man straight in the eye."

The expression, "superiority complex" had not then been invented. But my youth had it badly. And although Time has reduced the cranial swelling, I still prefer it to the inferiority complex so prevalent to-day.

Youth, whether male or female, should be a little swollen-headed; should be convinced of its own prowess. The "toady" is a loathsome animal in all places, but especially at school.

School over, men are judged, or at least they should be judged, by their capabilities for doing a job—not by their aptitude for currying favour.

Nevertheless—and although there is much truth in the poet's exhortation that every herring should hang by its own head—no man, however great his capabilities, can succeed by work alone. There are no lonely shacks in our modern existence. Even the artist has to live with, by, and through a multitude of his fellows.

The Rule Of Tact

You can be the most brilliant doctor who ever walked a hospital. But without a good "bedside manner" you will never reach Harley-street. And if you don't happen to possess that bedside manner by nature you must cultivate it by art.

The same rule applies in every profession and in every business—using that word business in its widest sense. You can call it the rule of hypocrisy, if you like. Personally I prefer to call it the rule of tact.

One can, of course, overdo tact. There are times when it becomes positively nauseating. Observe, for instance, the young foreign diplomat, effusively kissing the hand of some particularly abhorrent female to whom he has only just been presented. Or the man who calls you, "Smith, old boy," after five minutes' acquaintance.

And yet don't you, in your heart of hearts, prefer the bolshoi chap who drops the "Mister" from your surname to the fellow who drops your proffered fingers as though they were pieces of cold fish? Of course you do. And why not?

We are gregarious animals. Even before we learned to kiss, we used to rub noses and to recognise the tattoo-marks of our own tribe.

This persists—even in an age which suffers a little from inverted snobbery. The cheapest of all modern laughs is the laugh at the "old school colours." Sneer at the tribal tattoo-marks as much as you like. But can you play, can you even work, all by yourself?

You Can't Be Yourself

From personal experience I have found that you can't. You can't even "be yourself" (youth's most fervent wish) and be happy. Happiness itself entails some sacrifice of the individuality. Imagine a society in which every man who woke with a furred tongue gave vent to unbridled self-expression, and every wife told every husband exactly what she was thinking about him at every hour of the day and night.

It may be a little hypocritical to conceal one's immediate feelings. But can one rely upon one's immediate feelings? How many men and women have you started by hating and ended by appreciating? Dislike itself is often a prelude to love.

There are men and women whom everybody likes. There are men and women who like everybody. But these "Kims," these little friends of all the world, are rare. Most of us have to study how to become "good mixers." And that this study is detrimental to the character I refuse to admit.

The average human being, especially the average British human being, is far more sensitive than his or her face betrays. It may be great fun—nobody has enjoyed it more than I—to ruffle other people's sensitivities. But how we hate it when the process is reversed.

Tact Is Not Hypocrisy

A man is not necessarily a hypocrite because he respects some scruple, some inhibition, some idiosyncrasy of mine. Why, then, should I consider myself the hypocrite for not telling him: "Your politics are those of a lunatic. Your wife dresses like a charwoman. And why on earth don't you consult a dentist about your teeth?"

Such tact is not hypocrisy. A sane respect for other people's opinions, manners, or habits, is not hypocrisy. Even to go out of your way to make a good impression is not hypocrisy. Social amenities are preserved by social discipline. It is better to be a "good chap," even if you have to make yourself into a "good chap," than to worship the golden calf, Self-expression.

Self-expression, cultivated overmuch, soon degenerates into mere selfishness. Tact, at its best, is unselfishness.

At twenty-five I still imagined myself going through life with a gun in each hand. At thirty-five I put one gun back in its holster. Lately, I have learned to sheath the other as well.

Nobody has ever enjoyed "shooting up the town" as much as I have. Even Whistler never extracted more satisfaction from the "gentle art of making enemies." But that satisfaction, I have found, does not last.

Social Discipline

It is difficult enough to be a good lover. But to be a good hater is almost impossible for anyone with a little common sense and a little sense of humour.

Making enemies, I have found, is a sport that palls. As one gets older, one gets a little shaken in the belief that the other fellow is always wrong.

But the making of friends, even if only of superficial friends, is an enduring pastime. And the more one practises it, the easier it becomes. Social discipline, like military discipline, soon develops into

YARDLEY FRANCHISE POWDER

The one perfect powder for a flawless English skin.

Clear and cool and gardenia-smooth, the Englishwoman's complexion is like some pink-and-ivory-petaled flower, exquisite and rare. And she cares for it as she would her most precious possessions. She will use only the finest preparations that the world affords.

That is why Yardley made "Franchise" Powder.

It will give you more than you had ever hoped for from a powder. It is so light, it will cling for hours; so luxuriously fine, like delicate, tinted mist; so subtly shaded that only the touch of your fingers and the richer, softer finish of your skin will reveal that you have used a powder at all. Truly a miracle!

LOTTIE GORDON'S CONCERT

At China Fleet Theatre On Wednesday

To aid the Blind Girls' Home, the Navy Benevolent Fund and the Empire Link Extension (Hong Kong Branch), Madame Lottie Gordon will give her Australian Concert of music, song, and story on Wednesday evening next, at 9 p.m.

The following artists will assist: Doris Millar, Wilfred O'Brien, Robert Shorrocks, Albert Taylor, Wei Tat, Tuk Lo, Gwendoline Love, Mr. Braka, Dorothy and Winifred Raven, Terrence Garrard, Ramon and Daniel Lui, Ramon Wong (Hawaiian Music), Edwardo Sequerra (Saxophone), and Miss Dorothy Thomas.

Booking will be at Anderson's.

At the last rehearsal, on Monday evening, the choir was able to sing right through the opening chorus without a break, and, although the tempo was not perfect, entries and closings being a trifle ragged, the progress made in only four weeks is amazing.

The parts are well-balanced throughout, and it was rarely during the rehearsal that the basses obliterated the female voices. A striking feature of the rehearsal was the manner in which the choir responded to the conductor, any appeal for more life, a softer entry, or any slight modification, receiving immediate response.

With a large and keen membership, which it is hoped will be considerably augmented before the opening night, the Society feels confident that the concert will be a success.

There has been some slight misunderstanding in some quarters regarding the actual performance. Some people are under the impression that the opera will be performed, but it is pointed out that it is the concert version of "Merrie England" which is being practiced at present.

"MERRIE ENGLAND" CONCERT PARTY'S BIG IMPROVEMENT

Chorus Work Well Under Mr. Miller

SELECTION OF SOLOISTS NOW THE PROBLEM

Although there have been only four rehearsals of "Merrie England," three official and one preliminary, by the Hong Kong Philharmonic Society to date, the concert is already beginning to take definite shape, while some of the choruses are already being sung with a definite view of what they will be when the first performance takes place.

The first performance will be at the China Fleet Club on November 17, when H.E. the Governor, Sir William Peel K.C.M.G., K.B.E., and Lady Peel will be present.

Rehearsals, so far, have comprised only of chorus practices. The method of selection of soloists has been worked out, however, and any member of the Society who feels competent to sing one of the leading parts is invited to communicate with the conductor, Mr. Anderson Miller, when a private try-out will be arranged. Members who give satisfaction to the conductor will be tested in front of the committee before the final selection.

By this method it is hoped to get people who are suited to take parts, and who are keen to fill leading positions.

MR. MILLER'S GOOD WORK

There are many good singers among the 55 members of the society and several have already sent in their names for solo parts.

It is chiefly due to the indefatigable spirit of Mr. Anderson Miller that the choir has reached its present high standard. A wide knowledge of music, coupled with tact, personality, and a sense of humour makes Mr. Miller the ideal conductor, his facetious remarks and tactful rebukes calling forth the best from the artists.

At the last rehearsal, on Monday evening, the choir was able to sing right through the opening chorus without a break, and, although the tempo was not perfect, entries and closings being a trifle ragged, the progress made in only four weeks is amazing.

The parts are well-balanced throughout, and it was rarely during the rehearsal that the basses obliterated the female voices. It's EASY to Catch COLD or 'FLU' when TRAVELLING

'ASPRO' WILL PROTECT YOU

GERMS are no respecters of persons. Wherever you travel you cannot tell the moment you are likely to catch a cold—or even the 'Flu'. The proved protection is 'ASPRO'. At the slightest sign of sneezing—sore throat—feverishness, etc., take 'ASPRO' according to the directions in the packet. Quick relief is assured, because 'ASPRO' expels the body poisons through the pores of the skin, and, therefore, restores one to normal health by eliminating such poisons and not suppressing them. Furthermore, 'ASPRO' is safe, sure and certain—it neither harms the heart nor stomach, and it conforms to the standard of purity laid down by the British Pharmacopoeia—the guiding authority of the medical profession.

6 Banner Street, Wilmamtown.

Dear Sirs, I thank you for your kind interest in directing me to the certain way to effect a cure to the nasty COLD with which I had been battling for three weeks during which time I had tried so many other infallible remedies. On Thursday last I carried out your advice to the letter, and I could hardly believe the fact that on Saturday morning I woke up with no cold left, nor did I cough through the night as I had been in the habit of doing. Although I have used 'ASPRO' with excellent results for years in relieving HEADACHES, I can say positively and with very much appreciation that your advice that 'ASPRO' would break up a Cold or the 'Flu' in 24 hours if the directions were properly observed, has been conclusively proven. GRIM STORY OF BANDIT MURDER NOW REVEALED

practically all of his time to evangelistic and social service among the British and American soldiers, being highly esteemed by all and greatly beloved by many of those whom he helped.

Bravery Of Ex-Captive:
Letters of sympathy from scores of these soldiers, from England and elsewhere, came to Mrs. Pike, telling her what her husband's life and Christian testimony had meant to them while they were stationed in Shanghai and how grieved they were to learn of Mr. Pike's tragic death, at the hands of "Red" brigands, soon after his return to Kweilchow from Shanghai.

Although positively reliable details as to the martyrdom of this missionary hero may never be known, and several conflicting rumours have been circulated by the Chinese in Kweilchow, Mrs. Pike explained how she arranged with a former Chinese captive of the brigand band who volunteered to go again into their lair and make enquiries as to Mr. Pike's death.

This man, at great personal risk, spent three months among the bandits and came back and reported details which Mrs. Pike feels are fairly accurate, especially as they coincide with what Mr. Pike had told her of his determination never to consent to ask that ransom money be paid in the event of his being kidnapped while travelling in danger zones.

Tortured For Ransom
The man reported that the "Reds" subjected Mr. Pike to tortures for three weeks, trying to force him to write a letter asking that a ransom of $10,000 should be provided, but that he steadfastly refused. He constantly preached the gospel to his torturers. They finally threatened to shoot him, if he still refused, and the threat was carried out and his body was placed in a lime pit at the back of the bandit camp.

Mrs. Pike asked to be permitted to continue at her post alone and do her utmost to carry on the evangelistic work, which her martyred help-met had shared with her, until her daughter, and later her son, could come out from Australia and join her. She declined to have an army of Chinese soldiers go with the man who brought back the report as their guide, to exterminate the bandit gang and try to recover the body of her husband from the pit in which it had been buried.

Among the passengers who left on the P. and O. Mantua for England yesterday were, Mrs. E. N. Peddle, Mr. D. Murphy, Dr. and Mrs. A. M. Meyer, Surg. Lt. Flannery, R. N., Lieut. W. D. King, R. N., Mr. W. G. Baker, Major H. A. Courtenay and Mr. N. G. Goodman.

SOLUTION OF

HAND No. 5 (Published in S. Herald Sept. 16th.)

The only real interest of this hand lies in the bidding which should be as follows:—

N	E	S	W
Pass	Pass	One N.T.	Pass
Two Spades	Pass	Three N.T.*	Pass
Four Spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

* With a singleton Club and no strength in Spades it is safer for N. to insist on playing the hand in his suit.

Play.	E.	S.	W.	N.
1.	C. Ace	C 2	C 5	C 6
2.	H. Jack	H 2	H 8*	H. Queen
3.	S. Queen	S. King	S 3	S 2
4.	C 4	S. Ace	S 5	S 4
5.	C 7	C 3	C 8	S 6
6.	D 4	D 6	D 2	D. King
7.	D 10	D. Ace	D 5	D. Queen
8.	C 9	C. King	C. Queen	H 3
9.	H 6	H 5	H 9	S 7
10.	C 10	D. Jack	D 9	D 3
11.	H 10	H 7	H. Ace	S 8
12.
13.

As North is marked with the Queen, it is better for West to play low on this trick. If he goes right up with his Ace (of Hearts) the King and Queen will make separately, and on the King (trick 11) North will discard his fourth diamond, and then lead South's fourth diamond through West, having previously trumped both King and small Club.

No absolutely correct solution of the bidding and play was sent in.

Several competitors suggested the following bidding, with which not much fault can be found, except that South's natural second bid with his 4 honour tricks is three, rather than two, N.T.:—

N.	E.	S.	W.
Two S.	—	One N. T.	—
Three S.	—	Two N.T.	—

AUTUMN DAYS ARE HERE

Field Sports Coming To
The Forefront

EVENTS FOR NEXT WEEK

Autumn is in the air, and the cooler weather of the past two or three days should make to-day one of the busiest Sundays for a long time. Golf clubs will be brought out and re-furbished, while hiking boots, long since placed on the shelf, will receive an extra coat of polish and, perhaps, a hard day's work.

The bowlers, who are competing in the Gutierrez Shield International Bowls competition, will be sending down some very snappy woods, assisted by dry greens and sparkling air. India will meet Ireland on the Civil Service Green, and Portugal will clash with Australia at the Kowloon Bowling Green Club, so that enthusiasts on both sides of the water will have a match.

Sea bathing is drawing to a close, but to-day the St. John Ambulance Brigade will hold their Annual sports, commencing at 10 a.m. at the South China Athletic Bathing Pavilion.

Music Under The Moon

Local marksmen will be getting their eye in this afternoon at Talkoo, in preparation for meeting Shanghai and Singapore in the Interport in November.

With the full moon, the St. Andrew's Church Military Band Concert to-night should be a greater success than usual, and should draw a record crowd under the pine trees of the church grounds.

The recently-formed Reel Club will hold a further practice to-morrow evening at the Helena May Institute at 5.30 p.m., while at the same time the Philharmonic Society will gather at St. John's Cathedral Hall for their weekly rehearsal. There has been some hint that these two practices are likely to clash, there being some who are keen on both, and is likely that the date of one of these practices will be altered in the near future.

The European Y.M.C.A. will give a further whist drive for Servicemen to-morrow evening, while the Toc H will meet at Lane Crawford's for their weekly social gathering at 5.30 p.m.

Tuesday will see a further whist drive, sponsored by the Ladies' Church-Aid-Society, at the Sailors' and Soldiers' Home at 3.30 p.m., while at 5.30 p.m. the St. Andrew's Girls' Guild will meet at the St. Andrew's Church Hall.

Hockey At King's Park

A hockey match will take place in the evening, at King's Park, between St. Andrew's and the Y.M.C.A., to enable the members of both teams to work off their summer stiffness and get the proper swing into their sticks in preparation for the strenuous season ahead.

The Hong Kong Rotary Club tiffin will take place, as usual, at the Hong Kong Hotel Roof Garden.

Wednesday evening will witness the first concert of the season, when Madam Lottie Gordon will give her Australian Concert at the China Fleet Club, in aid of charities.

This show promises to be something quite novel in entertainments in the Colony, and includes Australian songs and Australian bush opera.

Interport Polo

The Hong Kong Ladies' Hockey Club will meet on Friday evening. The hockey season appears to be getting well under way, although the Munnik Tournament does not start for a week or so.

The big item on next Saturday's programme will be the Interport Polo match between Shanghai and Hong Kong for the Keswick Cup, to be held at the Polo Ground. Shanghai are sending down a fine team, but will meet with stronger opposition than that which they easily defeated in Shanghai last year. The local team are well-balanced, but have been handicapped by lack of training owing to continuous rain. The match, however, will be well worth watching.

The Kowloon Cricket Club will hold their dance at 9 o'clock on Saturday evening, while in the afternoon St. Andrew's Church will hold another of their popular bathing picnics.

FLORAL PARADE AND PAGEANT TO BE AT MELBOURNE

History Of Victoria In Floral Float

CENTENARY ATTRACTION

For the first time in Victoria's history, a Floral Pageant is being organised. The opportunity of the Prince's visit and the Centenary is being utilised as a suitable occasion for demonstrating what Victoria can do with flowers and artistry. Pasadena and other Cities in the United States, because of their ability to grow flowers and display them through the medium of Annual Street Parades of decorated floats have become famous, and Victoria, with possibly greater facilities, is seizing the Centenary as a suitable moment for showing what it can do in the cultivation and display of flowers.

Realizing this, the Motion Picture and Theatrical Industry Centenary Committee, under the aegis of the Centenary Council, have undertaken to sponsor a Floral Parade, which will probably be one of the outstanding features of this historic year. Victoria is essentially a flower-growing State, hence the Floral Parade will demonstrate its powers of creating horticultural charms equal to anything in the world.

Suburban Gardeners Aid

Naturally, to organize a Floral Parade, thoroughly symbolical of Victoria, it was essential for the Committee to obtain the support of the Municipal Councils. This is being readily granted, and the suburban garden lover will be one of their chief sources of supply for the function. In addition to this, Municipal Gardens, Horticultural Societies, and Flower Lovers generally, are doing their best to make this an outstanding floral year.

A Floral Parade that simply consisted of a display of flowers, would be, of course, of sufficient interest to command attention, but when it is realized that in addition to flowers, other arresting attractions will be included, it is certain that Melbourne will witness one of the most unique processions that has ever passed through its streets.

For these Floral Floats will not only display all that this State can produce in the way of blooms, but each, with flowers as a basis, will have a motif woven into it. It might be the history associated with a municipality; the romance of an industry or the beauties of the State. In short, many of the Exhibits will become tableaux, their motif being interpreted by living people; it can thus be easily visualised what an arresting spectacle this Procession will afford.

With flowers as a basis, floats will be designed, in the most attractive manner possible, to symbolize the various important phases of Victorian history, and the outstanding achievements of Victorian Industries. It is therefore, patent that the Floral Parade will not only attract, but will vitally embody every aspect of Victoria's community life in a most attractive fashion. On the morning of the Procession, the floats will be decorated with fresh blooms on a foundation of artificial flowers, then from the assembling point the colourful pageant, to the accompaniment of Bands and Choral Societies, will move through the city.

Practically every municipality will have its own float, and with other organizations from within its boundaries make up a complete unit, typifying its activities. As an instance—a Bay-side Municipality will probably have Representatives of its Yacht Club, its Life Saving Clubs and Sporting Bodies. Needless to say, each municipality will feature in the Procession, its most attractive girls with their garlands of flowers.

The incentive for the Municipalities will be a Competition for the Floral Parade trophies. Many business houses will provide their own floats, and with their facilities for organizing spectacular displays, and staffs of attractive girls, will vie with each other to win the trophies allotted to their section of the Parade.

Melbourne, during the Centenary, will have many Street Processions, but without doubt, the Floral Pageant will provide one of its most arresting spectacles. With flowers as the keynote, gorgeously decorated floats, enhanced in most cases with attractive girls, will for a day

THE ENDEAVOUR

THE finer points of tactics and sail-management referred to in the cables about the great yacht races between the Endeavour and the Rainbow are not easy for the landman to follow; the mysteries of the Genoa Jib and the ventilation of the spinnaker; the awful responsibility of deciding whether to tack at once or to make a long reach can be more or less appreciated by the members of the Yacht Club, who go in for our local races, but with all the world watching chronometer in hand the ordinary strain of a close race is multiplied a thousand times. With the final result of the contest still undecided all that one can say is that Mr. T. O. M. Sopwith has proved himself both as a skipper and as a sportsman. His offer to race against both Rainbow and Puritan was a splendid gesture; the refusal to accept the offer was equally in the spirit of a historic rivalry that has only once been ruffled by any ill-feeling. That was when Lord Dunraven, in the days before Sir Thomas Lipton appeared as challenger, complained to the Committee of the New York Club that the defending yacht had taken extra ballast on board during the previous night. In those days time allowance used to be given by the measurement from bow to stern along the water line. If the yacht had been measured with a certain agreed weight of ballast on board, she would have a more favourable time allowance than if, on indications of a fresher breeze, additional weight had been taken on. Lord Dunraven was unable to prove his case and the statement should not have been made. It was some years before another challenge was sent.

THE AMATEUR CREW

SINCE that unhappy day rules, rig, and design have been changed; and although the builder of the Lipton challengers, Watson, was famous as a designer, and built some famous yachts, it was often alleged that he built too much for British conditions. It was often asserted that the air on the other side of the Atlantic was drier and lighter, and that the canvas had to be more closely woven to get the full leverage out of a light breeze. Even in the present races it seems that Rainbow has the advantage when wind is steady; but it is quite clear that Mr. Sopwith, as we might expect from a man who has made fame and fortune by designing aeroplanes, has been willing to learn all he could from the criticisms passed on his predecessor's yachts and their management; and we are also told that Endeavour would have won the first race, which was cancelled because she passed the line two and a half minutes after the maximum time had elapsed, but for the inexperience of his amateur crew and their slowness in setting the Genoa Jib when she changed her course.

CORINTHIANS AND PROFESSIONALS

SCARCELY a word has been said about the incident that made it necessary at the last moment to take on board a crew of the owner's friends at the last moment in order not to disappoint many thousands of people and defeat the challenger's careful plans; yet the fact that the regular crew of trained sailors should have struck at the most inconvenient moment, just as she was (Continued on Page 12)

OVERHEARD

"Don't be puzzled. The whole thing, in its essentials, comes down to this: The money you haven't got yet isn't worth as much as the money you didn't have."

"The fact that there are two sides to every question means money for the lawyers."

"Women want men to be sturdy oaks and spruce."

"Streams and Rivers"

"Don't Rock the Boat"
"As long as things are getting better each week, it's time to sit tight."

SOLUTION TO THE ICE MENACE

AIR EFFICIENCY RAISED BY SIMPLE GADGET

BIRD DANGER TO FLIERS

(By Our Aviation Correspondent.)

Once discussed in one of these articles the rather remote possibility of there one day being an air-line from either China or Eastern Russia to the United States via the Aleutian Islands, with aerodromes along the coast of Russia, on the Aleutian Islands, which stretch in a continuous string across the Northern Pacific from Siberia to Alaska, down the coast of Canada and U.S.A. and subsequently connecting with the trans-continental lines of both countries.

This line, in these days, seems just as remote for, as I pointed out, the difficulties were enormous, especially in the winter seasons, when storms, snow and ice would make aviation a perilous task in the Arctic and sub-Arctic regions.

These difficulties I feel sure will gradually be cleared away, and I am able to state that one of the most serious has received expert attention; not with a view to assisting any particular line, but for assisting aviation generally where large distances have to be covered in climates where the mercury is below zero.

This is the all-important subject of ice forming on the wings of machines.

This trouble has brought many planes to their doom, including that intrepid pilot Bert Hinkler whose flights between Europe and South America, and Europe and Australia, are epics of aviation of this century.

FIVE YEARS AGO

(Extracts from the "SUNDAY HERALD" of September 22, 1929.)

The a.s. Deli Maru, bound for Hong Kong, was pirated off Blas Bay by a band of 12 Chinese pirates, led by a young woman chieftain who held two revolvers. Three Indian guards were wounded, four passengers were kidnapped, and the others robbed. The pirates made good their escape before H.M.S. Sandwich reached the scene.

The a.s. Talyuan, which was successfully launched at the Talkoo Dockyard, was constructed to the order of the China Navigation and Company, Limited.

Group Captain H.M. Cave-Brown-Cave, R.A.F., returned from Home by the a.s. Mantua. He was in charge of the R.A.F. Far Eastern flight of the flying boats which flew from England to Australia, back to Singapore, and up to Hong Kong, and back to Singapore, thus covering the longest distance ever achieved by this type of aircraft.

A pleasing ceremony marked the Kowloon Football Club's charity concert when Mr. G. A. Walker, the President, presented a gold watch, suitably inscribed, to Mr. Austin Spray, a popular football player of the Club, on behalf of Mr. K. S. MacKintosh, of the Canadian Pacific S.S. Co., whom he saved from drowning at Tsin Wan on August 31.

THE "HERALD" CALENDAR

September 23, 1914.—Hong Kong Prize Court condemned the H.A.L. "Frisia," captured by H.M.S. Triumph.

September 24, 1869.—Pirates attacked the German barque, "Apenrade," near Macao.

September 25, 1898.—Sir H. A. Blake, Governor, arrived in Hong Kong.

September 27, 1923.—The a.s. President Wilson brought with her to Hong Kong 800 Chinese refugees from Japan.

September 28, 1910.—H. A. L. "Lydia" wrecked near Hainan Strait.

It has also sent many air-liners to earth, particularly in Canada and North America where the ice-menace has held up many services during the winter months.

ICE MENACE
This formation of ice on the wings and propeller has three detrimental effects. The coating of ice on the wings not only adds to the weight of the machine, but materially alters the shape of the wing, considerably reducing its efficiency and lifting power, while much of the benefit of streamlining is lost by the alteration in shape.

Many attempts have been made to alleviate this trouble, even including running exhaust pipes through the wings. The danger from fire, however, was too great for this method.

One experimenter attempted to place electric radiators in the wings, but these proved to be too heavy, and took up much of the commercial carrying weight of the machine.

MR. T. B. WILSON

This is the eighth of the exclusive "Sunday Herald" series of sketches of leading Colony residents by Mr. A. S. Konyo, the talented Hungarian artist.

MR. T. B. Wilson, manager of the Dollar Steamship Company's Hong Kong Branch, President of the Rotary Club, and Vice-President of the Hong Kong Automobile Association, has had a long and varied career, his wanderings having stretched from the Arctic circle to the Equator.

Born near Seattle, U.S.A., Mr. Wilson was intended for a journalistic career, and graduated from Washington University, Seattle, in journalism, in 1912. After a short spell on a Seattle newspaper, however, he forsook the newspaper world for shipping, and, except for a period in the army during the war, he has been connected with this industry in various capacities ever since.

His first job was that of a stevedore in 1916, but, before America entered the war, he was managing one of the largest wharves in Seattle, the Chicago-Milwaukee Railway Wharf.

On his return to America after the war there appeared little scope in shipping, and Mr. Wilson, after a few trips as a purser, became agent for the Admiral Line, taking his first post in the Orient at Singapore, as their agent.

Later he went to Manila for the same Company, and, when they amalgamated with the Dollar Line, he was taken over by that Company and sent to Kobe in 1926.

Joins Hong Kong Office
In 1927 he came to Hong Kong to the Dollar Line local branch, and in March the next year he took his present position at the head of the office.

An increase in business since then necessitated premises for the present building in Fodder Street. It was in 1898 that Mr. Wilson went to Alaska, with his father, who made and lost a fortune in the (Continued on Page 12)

International Contests

THERE is something quite irrational, but very human, about our feeling of complacency when a representative or a team of our own country wins an international contest. We have had no share in training him; he is probably a stranger; we harbour no illusions as to our chance of ever being able to compete with him on level terms. Still, there it is. If we have the bad habit of taking three putts on the green we are not likely to go down in one simply because Cotton won the Open Championship. All the same, the long series of defeats was disturbing. Nobody is so greedy as to want to win every time; but nobody wants to feel that he belongs to a nation that gets defeated every time. It may indicate a failure of stamina; or a national lack of application; or a bad system of play. There was a great deal of puzzlement in England at the failure to maintain the old supremacy in athletics and sport in the post-war years, and some of the excuses were very unconvincing. It was said that a game was a game; and that there was a flavour of professionalism about the elaborate courses of training to which our competitors had submitted. That would have been all right as an excuse for amateurs who had to earn a living otherwise and to play professionals in their leisure; but that did not represent the actual conditions. Then there was the climate. We were told that in England there was not enough summer weather to compete with teams that could practice most of the year in Australia. There were other explanations; but climate would not account for the performances of Springboks or All-Blacks at such a winter game as Rugby Football. A feeling had grown that things would continue to go badly until the excuses were ended and it was recognised that the spread of the sports which had been invented in England to other countries had raised the standard. If we were to hold our own we must follow suit.

The American papers were very severe on Walter Hagen for a remark he made on landing after defeating Abe Mitchell for the Open Golf Championship, by a very narrow margin. "When are those people on the other side going to begin to practice putting?" The leading New York Herald asked. "Who is this loud-mouthed braggart?" But the criticism was sound. The easy going method of allowing two putts for every green could not stand against men who began to go down in one. There was nothing for it but to adopt the same strict practice of putting from all directions for hours day by day. The Brussels Club at which Cotton is professional let him off all his ordinary duties to practice as he liked, and paid his expenses for the tour needed to give him first class practice. We ought to share his glory with that Committee.

In Perry's case his father gave him freedom and backing to devote a year to Tennis, and had his reward. Tennis is a game in which the first class style is something quite different from the ordinary hit or its garden variety of game with which most of us have to be content. Many say that it is the typical game of the present era; and certainly in its rapidity, its dramatic changes; its tremendous draft on stamina; its resemblance to a duel, no game could be more dramatic. It can only be brought to perfect by meeting other equally good performers. Supremacy, therefore, tends to stay for a year or two at one centre; and it is to be hoped that the bringing home of the Davis Cup means that it will stay at Wimbledon for a time before it travels again to Forest Hill or Paris. One must not forget either the triumphs of our ladies. Miss Dorothy Round at Wimbledon and Miss Margaret Scriven at Paris have shown that the standard has risen all round.

At Henley Leander and London have returned to their old ascendancy. There is no ground for regret that visiting crews have shown that even on the river, where the first appearance of a Belgian crew with a fine turn of speed some years ago was regarded as a portent, followed by other visitors such as Cornell University, no eight can afford to carry a "passenger." In the Varsity race this year, though Cambridge won by a comfortable margin, both crews beat all previous records.

There are still worlds to conquer. At Golf the Americans seem to be a class above their English rivals; the Walker and the Wightman Cups are still on the other side. All that one can claim on the contests of the current year is that the dreary series of defeats has been broken. Once again the tourney in its various forms is an open event. Even the America's Cup, whatever the final result may be, is felt to be a level chance. And as to the legendary "Ashes" all we care to recall is the very neat retort made by the English Captain when Mr. Woodfull said: "Well, I hope we'll have a good game, and may the best side win." "I hope not."

HONG KONG AND THE NEW TERRITORIES. — No. 122.

DURING the last week two Wagtails have been seen in different parts of the island and in the previous week one was seen on the mainland. All three were pined Wagtails and probably the Striped Wagtail which is the commonest local species. Wagtails do not remain in Hong Kong throughout the summer—it is too hot, but fly north to cooler regions to breed. Usually they migrate in immense flocks containing individuals of several species. These three birds seen may have been adventurous members of the migration vanguard. Observations on, and dates of arrival of, these and other migrants, which come to us from the north to winter in the Colony, would be very welcome. Last week we also observed a hawk, probably a Sparrowhawk. The birds of prey with three exceptions all migrate north to nest and only reside in the Colony for the winter. The three residents are the Black-eared Kite, the White-bellied Sea Eagle and the Osprey. The visiting hawks and falcons include Sparrowhawk, Kestrel, Peregrine, Red-legged Falcon, Hobby, Merlin, Japanese Buzzard, Marsh Harrier and possibly others. This hawk seen in Pokfulam may have been one that for some reason stayed in Hong Kong for the summer as in July one (possibly the same bird) was seen in Little Hong Kong. On the other hand it may have been an early migrant.

The Silver-eye

The Silver-eye or White-eye, as it is alternatively known, Zosterops simplex, a small green bird with a conspicuous white ring round the eye, congregates in flocks for the winter months. In the spring and summer the birds go about in pairs but small family parties may be seen and heard in the banyan trees and in a month or two these will join together to form flocks of 50-100 or more birds which remain together for the winter.

The Local Sumac

There are three species of Rhus, all of which are abundant in the Colony, which are noticeable amongst the shrubs on the hillside at two seasons of the year. One is when they are in flower the other is when the leaves turn red in the autumn. The species are Rhus hypoleuca, Rhus succedanea, and Rhus semialata. The leaves of all the species resemble those of the English Ash tree. The first species can be distinguished by the fact that the lower surface of the leaf is whitish. This is the species now in flower. The flowers are terminal in large branched panicles reminiscent of a distance of the inflorescence of Spiraea. R. succedanea is now in fruit. The surface of the leaf of R. semialata is not as glossy as those of the other two species also the petiole of the leaf is partly winged between the leaflets. Soon the leaves of these three species will change in colour, from green to a variety of shades of reds and oranges. Carmine and the vermilion are represented in the range of colour. No other local tree, with the possible exception of Liquidambar formosana the so-called Far Eastern Plane tree, can vie in brilliancy of colouring with these three species of Rhus.

One word of warning should be given. The Poison-ivy of America is a Rhus and though our species are not very toxic they should not be handled by people with sensitive skins or they may possibly develop skin troubles difficult to cure. The Nippon varnish poisoning, to which some people are sensitive, is due to the presence in the varnish of sap from a species of Rhus.

Last weeks Notes should have numbered 121.

CANTON'S BITTER TIRADE AGAINST NANKING POLICY

"He assumes duties only at a time when there is a man with whom he can co-operate in the work of national salvation," Mr. Hsiao said. "At present all those in the Nanking Government, which is under the dictator's rule, are betraying the country. Co-operation between Mr. Hu and Marshal Chiang is impossible."

"Deplorable Policy"

Mr. Hsiao then told the pressmen that Marshal Chiang Kai-shek, after conferring with Mr. Wang Ching-wei and Mr. Sun Fo, had decided to elect 160 members for the Central Executive and Supervisory Committee of Kuomintang for the fifth term—the same figure as for the last term.

"It is deplorable," Mr. Hsiao said, "that Marshal Chiang cares less for national salvation than for the attainment of power in this time of national emergency. And as most of the members are influenced by him, no good result can be expected."

The Southwest leaders, Mr. Hsiao declared, will not only refuse to negotiate with him but strongly oppose such an arrangement.

Unfair Treatment

Touchnug upon the branches of the Party, inside as well as outside the country, Mr. Hsiao said that all those branches of the Party which participated in the convention of the Fourth National Congress in Canton have been treated as enemies by Marshal Chiang Kai-shek. The Central authorities' refusal to re-issue membership certificates to the members of those branches has caused great indignation. As the convention of the Fourth National Congress in Canton was approved by them, they should not adopt such methods.

"It is obvious that Marshal Chiang Kai-shek used the Central Tangpu as a tool for accomplishing his own purpose," Mr. Hsiao added.

Silver Exports Slated

Discussing the export of $150,000,000 worth of silver from Shanghai to America on the recommendation of Mr. H. H. Kung, Finance Minister, Mr. Hsiao said that the step taken will eventually affect the financial status quo of China. Mr. Hsiao also made reference to

BRUTALITY TO CHILD

Indian Policeman Accused

OFFICIAL DENIAL

A monstrous instance of brutality to a child occurred in front of Gray's Yellow Lancia shop, Alexandra Building, shortly before 10 o'clock this morning, when it is alleged an Indian constable kicked a 6-year-old street urchin in the ribs and confiscated the newspaper, which he was endeavouring to sell.

The incident aroused the indignation of many passers-by, while one Chinese gentleman was so aroused that he immediately telephoned to Mr. Peter Sin, a local solicitor, instructing him to prosecute on behalf of the child.

The little fellow, suffering acute agony, was carried into the shop and laid on a pile of Pekin carpets. A distinct bulge from under his jacket, which he tried to cover with his hand to ease the pain, appeared to indicate that a rib-bone had been fractured. He managed to tell those around him that his name was Ah Pak. He was an orphan and slept in the streets, selling newspapers for a living. He declared that the "big Indian policeman" kicked me and took my papers away. He appeared more concerned about how he could account for the papers, and the possibility of losing his only means of earning a living, than his own bodily harm.

Although the police were immediately informed of the occurrence, fully 15 minutes elapsed before an ambulance came to take the child to hospital. The Indian immediately disappeared after the incident.

OFFICIAL RETICENCE

Great reticence is being observed in official quarters. Enquiries from the Central Police Station late last night elicited the statement that the Indian involved was not a police constable, but probably an Indian guard employed in the vicinity. No arrests have been made.

In spite of the statement from the child, the police are convinced that the man is not a member of the police force.

The child, whose name is Pun Tak-yuen, was not admitted to the Government Civil Hospital, after examination, but was sent home, the "Sunday Herald" was informed last night.

When seen by a Sunday Herald representative, within a minute after the incident yesterday morning, the child was obviously in great pain.

SIMILAR INCIDENT

A similar incident occurred last Saturday at about midnight, when an Indian watchman, outside the Hong Kong Hotel, kicked a Chinese woman in a most brutal manner when she was looking into a shop window while waiting for a heavy rainstorm to pass over.

The unfortunate woman, frightened and hurt, created a disturbance for which she was forcibly removed to the Police Station.

WHIST DRIVE AT CRAIGENGOWER

Mrs. W. Shale Wins First Prize

A successful whist drive, in which 14 tables were in play, was held at the Craigengower Cricket Club last evening. Mrs. W. Shale winning the ladies' first prizes, and Mrs. H. Dear being runner-up.

Mr. R. Rhodes won the gentlemen's first prize, while Mr. Shen was second.

China's position in the family of nations. He said that China could not retain her seat on the Council of the League of Nations on account of the failure of the Central Government to pay the League dues and the fact that China is still in commotion. For this, the Nanking Government is held responsible—Central Press.

Public Support For Resolutions

Canton, Yesterday. Many telegrams circulated by public bodies pledging support to the four proposals submitted to the Central authorities by the Southwest leaders on September 8 were received here yesterday.

Among them were messages from the Party Members' Salvation Association in North China, the Kwangtung Mechanics Union, and the Special Tangpu of the Canton-Kowloon Railway.—Central Press.

GRIM STORY OF BANDIT MURDER

LOW REVEALED

Echo Of 7-Year-Old Outrage

MISSIONARY MARTYR

Hitherto unpublished details surrounding the brutal murder in Kweichow Province by bandits, seven years ago, of the Rev. Douglas F. Pike, of the China Inland Mission, were revealed to a Sunday Herald representative yesterday by the widow of the martyr, who is at present staying in the Colony prior to leaving for Australia, next Wednesday.

Together with her late husband, Mrs. Pike went into the great unevangelized territory of Kweichow Province, in the southwest of China, almost 30 years ago, as a member of the China Inland Mission, and for over 20 years laboured with her husband, unceasingly and wholeheartedly, and as a result of their zeal and devotion, several small groups of Chinese converts were formed into Christian Churches.

Then in the year 1927, when all missionaries in inland provinces had to be evacuated under Consular orders, because of the great Bolshevik upheaval in China, Mr. and Mrs. Pike were unable to return to Kweichow from furlough and had to go to Shanghai, along with other mission workers. During the many months spent in Shanghai, Mr. Pike devoted

POPULAR COUPLE UNITED

Pretty Ceremony At Cathedral

TOLLAN—WOOD

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. John's Cathedral yesterday afternoon when Miss Lorna Margaret Tollan, the third daughter of Mr. Duncan Tollan, was married to Mr. Cyril Frederick Wood, the son of Mr. Fred Wood and Mrs. Wood, of Doncaster, England.

The bride is an extremely popular member of Hong Kong's younger set. Mr. Wood is connected with the China Light and Power Co., Ltd.

The Rev. G. H. Baines officiated, while Mr. Frederick Mason was at the organ.

The bride, who was given away by her father, looked charming in a dress of white ring velvet, with a tulle trimmed with satin ribbon and pearls, held in place with a tiara of orange blossom and pearls. She carried a bouquet of white Honolulu creeper and maiden hair fern.

The bridesmaids, the Misses Eileen (Pat) Anslow and Dorothy Tollan, looked equally charming in dresses of blue moire trimmed with pink rose-buds and blue moire shoes to match. They wore pink and blue tiaras, and carried bouquets of pink Honolulu creeper and fern. Little Miss Laureen Cleme was flower-girl.

The bride's mother wore a dress of grey moroccan trimmed with lace to match and carried a bouquet of African pansies.

Mr. C. B. Easterbrook, of the China Light and Power Company, performed the duties as best man.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Jacobean Room, Hong Kong Hotel. Mr. W. P. Senth, in a few well-chosen words, toasted the health and happiness of the newly-wedded couple. Mr. Easterbrook also offered a toast to the bridesmaids.

The honeymoon will be spent at Castle Peak, and the bride's going-away dress was of delphinium blue angel skin satin, brown hat and shoes with a gloves and bag to match.

ST. JOHN AMBULANCE AQUATIC SPORTS

The Annual Aquatic Sports in connection with St. John Ambulance Brigade will be held to-day at the China Athletic Association Bathing Pavilion, North Point, commencing at 10 a.m.

PRETTY WEDDING IN KOWLOON

Martyred Missionary's Son Married

WILL WORK IN KWEICHOW

The wedding of Mr. Walter Lindsay Pike and Miss Jean Graham Robinson, both of the China Inland Mission, was solemnized in Kowloon, last Wednesday.

The legal marriage took place at the Registry, Supreme Court, on Wednesday, September 19. The same day a religious ceremony was conducted at Emmanuel Church Kowloon.

The Rev. John Bechtel, of the C. and M.A., officiated at the service which was attended by a number of missionaries, representing various societies labouring in South China.

A reception was held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. H. Lechmere Clift, the arrangements for which were capably managed by Mrs. Clift and Miss Field, of Haiphong. More than 30 guests were present at the reception.

Mr. Ritzl, of the Basel Mission, toasted the bride. The bride was charmingly attired in a dress of white lace and wore an oval-shaped embroidered net veil, held in place by a garland of orange blossoms. A beautiful bouquet of white lotus buds was carried by the bride. The flower girl, Miss Ruthie Wornar, wore a light green georgette crepe dress, trimmed with a yoke of cream-coloured lace.

The bride's going-away dress was a tailor-made costume of dotted Swiss material. The happy couple are spending their honeymoon at Cheung Chau Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Pike are planning to return to Kweichow Province to carry on missionary work under the China Inland Mission, in the Tuhahan district, where his late father laboured together with his mother for over 20 years, and where Walter joined his widowed mother as soon as he could after his father, the Rev. Douglas F. Pike, was murdered. The mother and her younger son, Alfred, are now in Hong Kong and are sailing for Australia next Wednesday, on the s.s. Nankin.

MISSIONARIES WED IN KOWLOON

C.I.M. Couple Married At St. Andrew's

AUSTIN—REEKS

A pretty wedding took place on Friday morning at St. Andrew's Church, Kowloon, when Mr. John A. Austin and Miss Lillian Reeks, both of the China Inland Mission, were married. The Rev. Wm. A. Molyneux, of the Bible Churchmen's Missionary Society, officiated.

The bride was given away by the Rev. A. Ritzl, of the Basel Mission, and the Rev. John Bechtel, of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, was best man. Little Miss Harriet Bechtel, dressed in a pale blue georgette colonial-style dress, was the flower girl, while Master Alvi Desterhaft, attired in a style costume of pale blue satin, acted as page boy.

The bride's gown was of white satin with a net embroidered veil, and a lily of the valley coronet. She carried a lovely bouquet of pink and white roses.

After the ceremony, a reception was held in the Emmanuel Church reception hall, which was attended by many friends.

The bride's going away dress was of dark brown silk. The honeymoon is being spent on Cheung Chau Island. The young couple plan to return soon to their field of missionary service in Kweichow Province.

BLUE SHIRT PROPAGANDA IN CANTON

It is equally improbable that General Chen Chi-tang, Commander-in-Chief of the First Group Army, has pledged support of Marshal Chiang Kai-shek. Mr. Hsiao emphasised, because General Chen is one of the signatories of the circular telegram of September 8. His adherence to the telegram, it is explained, is prompted by the fact that General Chen is a member of the Central Executive Committee of the Kuomintang.

Mr. Hsiao hinted that if the four proposals in the circular telegram are not accepted, the Southwest will take steps to realize its policies, namely, the punishment of those responsible for the loss of Manchuria and Jehol and a repudiation of the pro-Japanese policy.

Mr. Hsiao's views are not personal, but represent those of higher officials.

Because of the high value of silver, the Finance Minister, Mr. H. H. Kung, has sold silver to the value of $150,000,000 to the United States, according to a charge made by Mr. Hsiao, who pointed out that China is not a silver producing country and has for 000,000 in reserve.

Mr. Hsiao's views are not personal, but represent those of higher officials.

"Lend A Hand, Don't Make Excuses"

The Old Parable Still Applies To-day

An Appeal To Colony Workers

(By the Rev. J. N. Lewis Bryan.)

A few years after the War, a certain Officer commanded a Company in a certain Regiment, which shall be nameless. And I regret to have to add that he did not command it in strict accordance with the letter of the King's Regulations, and the other hand-books which the War Office insist shall be part of every Officer's library.

Be that as it may, the fact remains that there were always more marksmen in that company than third class shots, and when it came to sports, they were always there or thereabouts.

One of his peculiarities was, that around the walls of his company office, he had written up in pencil, all the excuses his men had given him on occasions when they had appeared upon a charge. His broad principle was that if a man could produce an excuse not already on the wall, he would get the benefit of the doubt, provided that the charge was not of too serious a nature, and had therefore to be sent up to the Commanding Officer.

There was one old soldier in the company, who had a splendid war-time record, but could not get down to peace-time soldiering. Not once, but often, he had appeared in the Orderly Room, but thanks to his skill in inventing excuses, he had so far managed to get away with it. But everyone knew that sooner or later his number would be up, and then he was for it, good and hearty.

Tense Atmosphere

One Monday morning, he was found to have overstayed his week-end pass. Excitement ran high through the Company lines, and odds were freely taken and offered as to his ability to get away with it on this occasion. The Company Commander took a last look around the walls to refresh his mind as to the old excuses, and the general atmosphere resembled a cross between the Old Bailey on the last morning of a murder-trial, and the start for the deciding event of the Olympic Games.

The prisoner was marched in according to ancient tradition, the charge was read out, and evidence given. When he was asked if he had anything to say, the O.C. gently waved his arms around the walls, and murmured, "You will have a job to find a new one this time."

Wiles Of An Old Soldier

"As a matter of fact, sir," he replied, "I have an excuse. I admit that I cut things pretty fine, but I had exactly one minute and a quarter to get to my platform when I came out of the Tube station at Waterloo. I was carrying my kit-bag, and I started to run for the barrier. Our train, as you know, sir, is always at the top end of the platform. I handed my ticket in, had it punched and was starting to run for it. I could have made it, only just at that very moment, a Salvation Army Band on the next platform, seeing one of their people

After the excuse given in the case of the soldier, these are too feeble and childish for words. The man who had bought a piece of ground without bothering to see it before, the man who had purchased oxen and was proposing (presumably with the help of a lantern) at that time of night to give them the once-over for housemaid's hooks, or ingrowing horns or something. The third had at least a human touch. Let us only hope he made the same excuse ten years later.

The fact of the matter was that they had no desire to come, and any excuse was as good as another. Rudeness and ingratitude did not seem to matter. But the feast was not wasted. The servants were sent out into the streets and lanes of the city, and the maimed and the blind were given their places. When it was found that still there was room, they scoured the highways and hedges and more were brought in.

Parable That Still Applies

"It is just a delightful picture of the love and care of God our Father. He offered the feast of His religion to the people who had been trained all down the years to receive it. When they rejected it, it was offered to the world. That is why the Christian Religion has grown up, outside the boundaries of the Jewish Faith. Not only the righteous are called, but sinners, to His feast. The sad thing, however, is that the parable still works out the same, in the days in which we live.

When He makes that wondrous appeal, "Follow Me, for I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life," with one consent men begin to make excuse. They are ready to follow anyone, and anything, rather than walk with Him along the pathway. His claims are just ignored. When He invites those who profess to follow Him to come to His House, we find empty pews. Again, with one consent men begin to make excuse.

Fresh Joy In Life

If there was one man who had every reason to excuse himself from the duty of worship, that man was Christ Himself. He must have been bored beyond anything words can express, hearing the Scribes expound the Books of the Law in the Synagogues on the Sabbath Day. But He made it the rule of His life to be there despite that fact, not because He really needed it, but because it was His duty. The same thing applies to the sacred Feast of His Body broken and His Blood shed. There is room there for many who at present are making excuses for the non-attendance.

In a few months' time the winter's work in the Colony will be upon us. The street-sweepers will be commencing again, and other activities. When the call comes, as it will, for volunteers, instead of making excuses let us try and lend a hand. It may not pay a dividend in solid cash, but it will give you a new interest and a fresh joy in life, —the joy that comes from making others glad.

Boxing Enthusiast
It is with boxing, however, that he is really interested as a sport, and, while in Manila he ran a very successful boxing "stable", training, and arranging fights for four or five very promising lads. It is interesting to learn that one of the lads he fostered, training him from the tender age of about 12 years, is now one of the most promising bantamweights in America, Speedy Dado, who recently concluded a successful tour of Australia.

Local Interests
His interest in boxing in Hong Kong is evidenced by his place on the committee of the Hong Kong Boxing Association.

A member of the Rotary Club in Manila, Mr. Wilson was one of the original chartered members when the Hong Kong Branch was started about four years ago, and, last year, was elected President of the Club.

The Passing Hour

ready to leave England, is staggering and ominous. When big-yacht racing was at its zenith in the eighties of last century, it was customary to have at least one "Corinthian" event at each regatta. The competitors were steered by their owners and the sails were managed by his friends. The event was looked on as an interval of light recreation from the serious business of racing. On other days the Captain was the autocrat, and would not allow any passenger on board who was inclined to be fussy. It was not unknown for the owner himself to acquiesce unwillingly in exclusion. There was always a rumshaw for a win; but to strike for excessive pay just before a race would have disgraced any sailor in the eyes of his mates. The incident will not help the revival of a noble but very expensive sport.

THE EMPLOYE OWNER

IT is not as though the sailor on private yachts had ever been underpaid. The growing habit of squeezing the employer for more money just when he needs a man most is destroying the old spirit of sharing his fortunes and enjoying his successes. I remember one old hand who had been in the Royal Navy and had passed into the Reserve, who always used the proprietorial "we";—"we made a mistake about the current at Belfast, but we'll show 'em at Cowes". He had signed on as steward, but was equally competent for anything else. Putting ashore for some supplies I was amused to see him in front of a shop sharpening a big knife. "You see, sir, we're a butcher in Holyhead." Soon after that he applied for leave, and explained "we're taking the Atlantic Fleet out for manoeuvres next month." I never had any doubt that he got more fun out of the summer cruise than his employer.

SIMPLE SOLUTION
The most successful method yet discovered is perhaps the most simple. A hollow rubber covering is fitted along the leading edge of the wing and inflated and deflated by means of a small alternating pump, which takes up little room and which is easy to incorporate in the machinery of the plane.

The continual inflation and deflation of the rubber covering cracks the ice as soon as it forms, causing it to break and fall off before it can coat too thickly.

TRIED WITH SUCCESS
This method is undoubtedly successful, and I have it on good authority that one American firm which introduced it paid for the installation of the equipment during the first week of operation by increased regularity of services. It is an undoubted fact that regularity of a service is one of the most important factors, not only that people like to know when a plane is leaving or arriving, but it gives confidence to the few who still feel that there is something terrible and dangerous about travelling by air.

It is encouraging to learn that these difficulties, which beset commercial aviation in all parts of the world, are gradually becoming eliminated, often through the experiments of those who are just keen to improve flying without any particular desire to benefit by their own trouble.

BIRD DANGER
It is curious to note that a warning has been issued to flyers coming to the East for the first time, to watch for birds.

In India it is not at all unusual for machines to crash into vultures, kites, and other such birds, even when flying at as much as 10,000 feet. The results of one such collision was fatal, the machine being wrecked in a forced landing which followed.

The warning advised pilots to keep an eye open for birds, particularly when flying over towns, and that in the event of one being seen, the plane should fly around it, but on no account fly below it, as the bird's natural instinct is to dive when in danger.

I don't know whether local pilots at the flying school have experienced this trouble with the large hawks which abound in and around the Colony, but it is a point worth watching.

Stiff Fines For Shy Establishment

Pleading guilty to charges of keeping a printing press without a license, printing Macao Lottery tickets, keeping a common gaming house and having possession of 146 Macao Lottery tickets, Hui Hin-chik (36), was ordered to pay fines totalling $500, in default eight months' hard labour, by Mr. E. I. Wynne Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday morning.

Detective Sergeant Poyntz stated that he conducted a raid on No. 232, Lai Chi Kok Road, second floor, at 7.20 p.m. on September 21, and found the defendant in the rear cubicle with all the apparatus. He also found thousands of tickets which were not finished.

Mr. Wynne Jones ordered that all the apparatus be confiscated.

U.S. ARMY BUYS 1467 WESTINGHOUSE REFRIGERATORS

The War Department of the United States has awarded a contract to the Westinghouse Company for 1467 refrigerators, in continuation of their policy of equipping their officers' quarters in various posts throughout the country with modern conveniences.

The order was given to Westinghouse only after exhaustive tests had been made of their refrigerator in competition with seven of their most prominent competitors.

This is indeed a glowing tribute to the superiority of Westinghouse refrigerators.

First cost was not the main consideration, in the United States Army's decision to place their order for Westinghouse. Their principal concern was to obtain a refrigerator which would give them satisfaction for years to come at a minimum operating and serving cost.

ceived September 22, 11:11 a.m.)
New York, Yesterday.
Messrs. Dunn and Bradstreet report that considerable uneven-ness marked the retail trade reports last week, although they estimate that retail trade gained from 3 to 10 per cent. over the corresponding week of last year.
England trade has suffered due to the strike, but sudden merchandise from the middle-west cheered things up considerably, they state.
"The Autumn season has already succeeded in making a more favourable showing than seemed possible," they add.

stated Cheung Ping, a 33-year-old unemployed, who was brought before Mr. E. I. Wynne Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday morning on a charge of having returned from banishment.
"I suppose he was going to pay you compensation for the period
you did in jail," said Mr. Wynne Jones when it was stated that the defendant had been sentenced to two months' hard labour in June for keeping a divan. The defendant said that he understood that that was the idea, and was sentenced to six months' hard labour.

POLAND'S WITHDRAWALMINORITIES
DISCUSSION
AT GENEVA*Resolution Meets
Opposition*CAPT. EDEN'S ADDRESS

London, Yesterday.

At the conclusion of yesterday's discussion on the minorities treaties in the Political Commission of the League of Nations Assembly, the Polish delegate, M. Raczyński, withdrew the resolution calling for an International Conference to deal with the whole question, and to consider a convention for the bringing into force of a generally applicable and uniform system for the international protection of minorities.

The British delegate, Capt. Anthony Eden, in opposing the proposal for the universalisation of minority treaties, said that it had yet to be shown that universalisation would yield better results, and that it was paradoxical that Poland should have accompanied her expression of disappointment with the application of the system to her own country with a demand for its worldwide extension.

WAR SEQUEL

"The problem, which was limited, arose mainly in specified areas in Europe, and resulted from the fact that under the territorial changes following the war, certain nations acquired the responsibility of governing groups of foreign nationalities," he said.

"The treatment meted out to every section and creed among its citizens was one of the criteria by which every Government must expect to be judged. Had any state any more valued possession than its good name for the just and impartial treatment of every section of its citizens, whatever their race colour or creed?

JEWISH PROBLEM

"It was well-known," he continued, "that acute racial feeling had arisen in the past, in connection with Jews in certain countries, and that such minorities were accordingly quite rightly covered by the treaties. "This applied only to certain areas—for, in the majority of the countries of the world, the so-called 'Jewish problem' was, of course, unknown.

"The objects of the minorities treaties were two-fold, to promote European tranquillity, by assuring an equality of treatment to minorities, and to provide that the alleged discrimination against minorities should not be the subject of any dispute between the country to which minority belonged politically, and the country to which it belonged racially.

FURTHER OPPOSITION

"There was no general world problem which would justify a worldwide extension of this arrangement," he added. "The object of the minorities treaties, was to set up a system to deal with the problem as long as it existed, and that the minority treaties contained a clause by which they could be modified with the consent of the 'League
Council', he concluded.

Baron Aloisi, of Italy, and Monsieur Massigli, of France, also opposed the Polish proposal, and, according to press reports, the debate revealed that the majority of the delegates shared this view.

In announcing the withdrawal of the resolution the Polish delegate,
M. Raczyński, said that he recognised that unanimity would be necessary to obtain the change Poland desired.—British Wireless Service.

Bob Charles Wins
Mr. Bob Charles, one of the institutions of the Valley, romped home on Lemberg in the Island Bay Handicap to give the Hem Stable their second win of the afternoon and pay $71.70 and $21.60, besides upsetting the "double," while Mr. Lee's Bistre was beautifully ridden into second place, 1 1/4 lengths behind, to pay $72.40. Racing Boy, the 1932 crack, secured third place ahead of Daylight Eve (Mr. Davis) and Valorous (Mr. Heard), the favorite.

The crowd, which had by now been almost doubled, gave Mr. Charles a great ovation.
Mr. Caplan took The Tiger out into the lead, followed by Lemberg, but he cracked badly under his own fast pace, and it looked flying Tourist's race on the corner into the home straight. Lemberg, however, finished strongly, though Bistre, which had shot from nowhere, was gaining with every yard.

The cash sweep on this race was worth $1,169, as compared with $1,136.80 on the first race.

Gladiator's Success

Mr. Bob Charles proved his earlier success was no flash in the pan when he brought home Gladiator in a field of seven in the Tweed Island Bay Handicap, though Brechin (Mr. P. Botelho), which had led up to the home straight, very nearly caught him when he eased up his pony 100 yards from the post.

Gladiator was in second position until the stands were reached, and then he caught the favorite, Mayflower was third, followed by Don, Bright View, Soldier of China, and Pride of Tsingtao.

Hey Tor Fulfills Hopes

Hey Tor fulfilled expectations in the Picnic Bay Stakes, Benny Proulx, who did not get his usually good start for a sprint, taking the lead in the back straight and holding it to the post. Bold Commander was given a breather after the Rock and it was then that Hey Tor established an unassailable position, despite Bold Commander's fine comeback over the last furlong and Vago's challenge. Fi Fa was fourth and The Carp fifth.

No less than a $36,103.65 prize rested on this race.

Mr. Caplan's Win

Another old-timer staged a comeback when Mr. Caplan won the Aldrich Handicap on Wayward Stag after attempting to secure an early lead and watching What a Chance take it from him. He won in a counter with Zero filling second place and What a Chance third. Royal Flush, Great Hall, and William Oslar, the favorite, followed in that order. The winner paid $55.90.

Dead Heat For First Place

The last race, the Vauluse Handicap, provided the best finish of the afternoon when Australian Boy and The Goose dead-heated with St. Joan only a head behind. There was quite a delay before the numbers were hoisted, and many thought a triple tie would be the result.

Mr. Johnny Heard availed himself of the starter's car to take him to the starting gate while Dinty was led to the post by two mares. The precaution, however, proved fruitless as the pony whirled badly at the gate and was left standing. When he did start he went like the wind, but there was no hope then.

Cheeky Face also behaved badly, so much so that Mr. Taylor had to dismount without having passed the starting line.

Lady Peel's Lucy Gitters was in at the finish but was boxed in the home straight and was unable to come through. St. Joan, the favorite, was slow in getting away otherwise she might have won.

Hide Your Eyes (Continued From page 2.)

"That same one?" Barbara asked. No names were ever exchanged in the Kressman household. Professional ethics. But the cases were known by familiar tags. "That same one" stood for Mrs. Benson.

"That very one!" the doctor smiled. "But we're coming to the end of the string there. She'll be a well woman in two weeks—or less, if she'll come every day."

"Oedipus complex?" his wife asked. She liked to think she "shared" things with her husband, and she had, as a matter of fact, gathered quite a good deal of the nomenclature without fixing the basic facts beneath.

"Unfaithful?" Barbara asked. "I'm afraid so," the doctor answered, glancing at his notes. "Did she tell you so?"

"Well, no. Not directly. But we have ways of finding those things for ourselves."

"And most of the time you're wrong," his wife smiled. "Sometimes, I'll admit. But not very often. Almost never in a case like this. Projection is one of the most common psychophenomena. She identifies herself with some woman who hasn't been exactly virtuous, some woman in history, or fiction, or some acquaintance of hers, perhaps. And then she sets about defending her. Not herself, you understand. But the other woman. If she could defend herself, she'd be mentally healthy. But she can't."

"Perhaps she thinks she doesn't need any defence," Barbara pointed out. "But she does. Her defence of those other women shows she does, or rather, that she thinks she does."

"On the other hand, there's just a chance you're wrong. And you make this poor woman come in here day after day and exhaust herself, while you test some inadequate theory of yours."

"Hardly inadequate, my dear, and it isn't a theory any longer. Besides, the treatment's for her good. I don't make her come, you know."

"It's the same thing. You're talking to her, wearing her down, day after day, just the way the Inquisitors did."

"But they were scarcely trying to cure. Some cures are unpleasant, you know, my dear. But very necessary."

"But the object's the same. You're trying to drag information out of her, make her confess to something she most likely didn't do."

"There's almost no doubt that did."

"And what if she did! What if she was unfaithful. Perhaps her husband didn't love her. Or she him. You can't make blanket condemnations like that, you know."

"I'm not condemning anything. I'm merely trying to find out."

"But why? Why find out? Why not let her keep her secret? Most likely she had a thousand reasons for doing what she did. Things aren't always either good or bad, you know. You can't just label things black or white. There are greys as well, and lots of them. A woman in a situation like that is always condemned. But her motives aren't necessarily as mean and low and unspendable as people pretend they are."

The doctor didn't want to argue. He was very tired. He picked up his pencil and sat looking at the notes in front of him. His weary mind ran on in the channels of his profession: he was too tired to stop it. "Mean, low and unspendable."

Strange the way those words recurred. Almost a perfect pattern. And vicarious defence, a type of transference through projection. This last thing, this firm resistance to questioning, the feeling that the doctor was "prying." How familiar that was. He wished he had had stenographic notes of that argument for Mrs. Benson. An almost complete transference offering vindication for yourself through the medium of another.

He picked up his pencil and drew the last line into the centre of the circle before him. The "case history," on Mrs. Benson was complete. It was just a matter of getting her to admit it. He glanced up. Suddenly he realised he wasn't talking to Mrs. Benson.

BRIGHTER AND BETTER DOLLAR DIRECTORY

Everyone Requested To Aid Compilation

OBVIATING MISTAKES

The compilation of the 1935 issue of the Dollar Directory is going rapidly forward and, as will be seen by a large notice in the advertisement columns of this issue of the Sunday Herald everyone in the Colony is earnestly requested to aid in the compilation by sending in correct information regarding themselves or their friends.

It seems strange how reluctant, or tardy, persons generally are about sending in blanks which are posted to them with an urgent request for prompt return with corrections or alterations.

Most people evidently expect the compiler of a directory to be omniscient!

Such people, after receiving two or three blanks and throwing them into the waste paper basket, usually find their name omitted or their old address printed instead of their new residence. throw down the book and loudly declare that it is absolutely incomplete and inaccurate!

Every possible effort is being made to get the correct items from every firm and resident as early as possible, so the heavy task of listing, checking, and compiling may be completed in good time for early publication. Every one is urged to act promptly rather than postpone the matter until it is too late.

The response from advertisers has already been most gratifying, many contracts having been signed for full page advertisements, as well as practically all of the high priced spaces on the outside and inside covers.

72 SKELETONS IN GOLD SHIP

Grim Discovery By Salvagers

Juneau, Alaska. When the wreck of the Canadian Pacific steamer Islander was salvaged recently after 33 years, 72 skeletons were discovered in her.

The Islander sank off Douglas Island, on the Pacific Coast, on August 15, 1901.

She was carrying gold dust shipped by mining groups at the close of the Klondike gold rush.

MOTING NOTES

PRINCE SEES FORDS IN THE MAKING

Visit To Huge Motor Works At Dagenham.

MR. FORD'S NEW CONCERN

London, July 13.

The Prince of Wales this afternoon made a tour of the huge factory at Dagenham of the Ford Motor Co.

The Prince flew to Honechurch Aerodrome, Essex, from London, where he landed in a rainstorm.

He was met at the aerodrome by the directors of the company and proceeded to the factory in a V-8 car.

The trip, started at the jetty, where the Prince saw the giant motors loading tractors for export.

The blast furnace Moloch that consumes 2,000 tons of iron ore, coal and limestone each day, was pouring when the Prince arrived.

It was an amazing visit, but in so short a time it was impossible to get more than a blurred impression of the marvellous new organisation that Mr. Ford has created at the side of the Thames—an organisation that was built on a 28-acre slab of concrete, pinned down by a forest of concrete piles, on what was only a few months ago waste marshland.

The Prince drove one of the cars that he saw completed, off the end of the assembly conveyor. This car was presented to him, and he, in turn, presented it to St. George's Hospital.

LONDON'S SILENT HIGHWAY

Water Taxi-Cabs Now Introduced

DAYS WHEN FARES WERE HALF

Water taxis are by no means so new as may be thought owing to the great interest which is now being taken in them.

According to "Motor Transport" they were in use on the Thames in 1614 and discontinued in 1820.

Before coaches and sedan-chairs became popular it continued, the Thames was the usual medium of transport for passengers and goods, and the cries of "Next oars" and "Boat, your honour, boat," was as common as "Taxi" to-day, and at one time there were more than 40,000 licensed watermen.

One-man boats were called "scullers" and two-man boats "oars." Fares for latter were: Temple to Lambeth 8d., London Bridge to Wapping 6d., Windsor 14s. Across the river 4d. For "scullers" the fares were half.

Waterman's language was renowned, and in 1785 they were fined 2s. for swearing.

Nobility, the Lord Mayor and Royalty generally, used the river for transport, the last monarch to do so being Queen Victoria as late as 1849.

ORDINARY FUEL USED FOR CHAMPIONSHIP RACE

It is not without interest to note that whereas the majority of successes obtained by racing cars are identified with the use of highly specialised fuel, Mr. John Cobb won the Brooklands Championship race and established a new lap record for the track using the Standard grade of National Benzole Mixture, the same in every respect as that which can be obtained from thousands of roadside pumps up and down the country.

COAST-TO-COAST RECORD

Established By Bob McKenzie

"MURDEROUS" U.S. ROAD CONDITIONS

A new United States coast-to-coast record for automobile speed has been established by Bob McKenzie, well known cross-country racing driver. It is announced by the B. F. Goodrich Company, Akron, Ohio.

Driving a 1934 Ford V-8 roadster equipped with standard Safety Silver-town tires, McKenzie roared into Los Angeles, 54 hours and 40 minutes after he had left Port Ambury, N. J.

Mile-A-Minute

The distance covered was 3,246 miles, travelled in 3,280 minutes, or an average of 69.38 miles an hour. He was officially timed by Western Union.

Although rain storms were encountered in Pennsylvania, Arizona and New Mexico, most of the record run was made through blistering heat. McKenzie was accompanied by Mechanician O. N. Brown.

Commenting on the record, McKenzie said: "Road conditions were murderous and the heat most of the time appalling. To establish such a record, it was essential that the tires give no trouble, despite the punishment they had to take. When run was finished the tread on the Safety Silver-towns seemed hardly worn."

750,000 CARS TO INSTAL RADIOS

250,000 Sets More Than Last Year

SPECIALLY BUILT IN BY PACKARD

More than 750,000 automobile radio sets will be sold during 1934, it is predicted by automobile accessory managers. The half million sets sold during 1933 are pointed to as proof that motor car radio is no longer just a fad.

The Packard Motor Car Company, one of the pioneers in development of automobile radio reception, says that 35 per cent. of all Packard cars now being delivered are equipped with radio.

Packard has so engineered its present cars that much of the equipment for radio sets is built into the car itself. All closed cars have built-in antenna in the roofs. The ignition system is completely shielded to guard against electrical interference and provision is made for radio sets to be installed quickly and easily.

The radio sets themselves have been especially developed for Packard cars and, say the accessory department heads at the Packard factories, they have been tested with thousands of miles of actual use at the Packard Proving Grounds.

for the track using the Standard grade of National Benzole Mixture, the same in every respect as that which can be obtained from thousands of roadside pumps up and down the country.

"A Typhoon is Expected—"

Impressions of an Oriental Hurricane: A Gale of 136 Miles per Hour.

(BY JOHN REVIE)

A BROODING air of tense expectation pervades the island colony of Hong Kong. For the past twelve hours the high trellis mast of the Royal Observatory has borne the big black "T" which indicates the existence of a threatening typhoon, and this has just been changed for a coneshaped symbol which shows that the storm centre has come nearer, and that a severe gale from the north is expected.

The bars, cubes, and crosses of the Storm Signal System exhibited at the Signal Station to give the longitude, latitude, direction and intensity of the typhoons which so frequently scour the China Sea between July and September show that the present climatic disturbance is less than sixty miles distant, and is travelling directly towards the colony.

Watchful eyes pass from the signals to the ominous, overcast sky, and from the sky to the barometer, which is falling with increasing rapidity, and is now dangerously low. The beautiful, spacious harbour, usually so thronged with shipping, is significantly empty, the larger vessels having moved to safe anchorage, while launches and native junks and sampans have sought the security of the specially constructed typhoon shelters. Everything movable has been made fast, and all doors and windows securely shuttered. Hong Kong waits, ready, for the blow to fall!

Threatening Sky

The grey sky darkens every moment, and there is a threat of what is to come in the over-increasing force of the occasional gusts of wind. Then comes an ominous lull. All eyes are turned to the observatory mast. The black cone has been lowered. Three gunshots boom out from the Signal Station, and a black cross, the final warning, is hoisted to the trellis mast! The typhoon has arrived.

Even now the trees are swaying before the gale, and an occasional roof-tile crashes to the street. With every gust the wind gains in velocity, and presently it is whistling shrilly, and driving before it solid sheets of rain, while out on the harbour the waves are being lashed into fury, and great white vells of spindrift swirl and run like mist over the surface of the sea.

Fiercer and fiercer the tempest rages. Above the shrieking and whistling of the wind, above the hissing of the driven rain, cracks and crashes echo the masterful fury of the gale, as trees after trees, strained to the utmost, are laid low, and fencing, roofing, and shutters are carried away like paper.

Through the grey haze of rain, a proud ship, driven from her "safe" anchorage, is seen straining at her cables, and though her engines are being driven "full ahead" to offer the utmost resistance, she drags her anchors, and is driven slowly but surely backwards. Only the best of seamanship, allied to the best of luck, can save her from finding a resting place high and dry on the beach.

136 Miles An Hour
For more than two hours there is no abatement of the storm, but ultimately the singing of the wind becomes less shrill, the gusts more spasmodic and less fierce, and the gale diminishes to a strong breeze. A tour of inspection becomes possible, and a survey of damage is made.

Thanks to the adequate precautions rendered possible by the excellence of the Storm Signal System, the damage, although very extensive, is not of a serious nature. Here a roof has been torn off, there a window blown in; on that side a fence has been carried away, while on this a tree, victor over many of former typhoons, has at last been snapped in twain.

In due course an official announcement is made, and it is learned that the gale reached a velocity of 136 miles per hour, and when this and other details have been made public, the old-timers settle down to reminiscences of former and fiercer storms. Another typhoon has come and gone.

THREE BIDS IN MINOR SUITS

(By LADY RHODES)

LIKE everything else, bridge system are subject to changes. Either these changes are made by the authors, or the more enterprising players make their own modifications as a result of experience in playing the systems.

Such a change has come about in the opening Three Bid in a Major Suit Take, for instance, hand:

S—A K J x x x D—K x
H—A x x C—x

Here there are eight playing tricks consisting of 6½ in spades, 1 in hearts, and ½ in diamonds. A year or two ago practically all Culbertson players would have opened with three spades. Nowadays, with a hand of such high card strength, it is considered better to make the approach bid of one spade for two reasons:—

1. The hand is by no means hopeless if played at another declaration by the partner.

2. The partner will give at least a no trump response to one spade on little more than a trick. To open with three spades on this hand may shut out valuable information from the partner, and so prevent a slam call being reached. On the other hand, should the partner have a worthless hand—a one spade declaration is obviously safer than one of three spades.

With a hand, however, of this type:

S—K Q J x x x D—A x x x
H—x x C—x

three spades is the better opening. There are 7½ playing tricks, and the hand may be useless to the partner if played at any other declaration than diamonds. If the partner has strength in diamonds, the hand may just as well be played in the major suit. Owing to the length of the spade suit, there is very little defensive value against an opponent's call.

In my own opinion this type of bid might be used more often than it is in cases where the suit is deficient in high cards.

Here is an interesting example that occurred the other day. North and South were not vulnerable, East and West were.

North holding:
S—J 10 9 7 6 4 2 D—A 8
H—K J 10 C—A K 6
opened with 3 spades. East's hand was:

S—K 8 3 D—K Q 7
H—A Q 7 4 C—A K 6

The high opening bid put her in a difficult position. She and her partner were playing the Culbertson system and she did not like to say 3 no trumps, being uncertain as to whether her partner would take it as a forcing bid. From her point of view, she might have some difficulty in making 3 no trumps if the declarer held six or seven spades to the A Q J and a card of re-entry. On the other hand, it was risky to double the bid, as it might be possible for North to make her contract on distribution if the double were left in. She therefore passed, as did South and West.

The other two hands were:—

South West
S—Q S—A 4
H—8 6 5 3 H—9 2
D—J 6 5 4 D—10 9 3 2
C—J 9 7 4 C—Q 10 8 3 2

North was thus only two down, making five tricks in spades, one in

SUN-SPOTS AFFECT WEATHER

Does the sun or the moon's orbit affect the weather?

The old belief, "Change of moon, change of weather," does not seem to have meteorological evidence behind it, but sun-spots do seem to have a connection with the weather. It is, however, a very complicated connection, and will take years to work out.

hearts, and one in diamonds. Had North passed, East would have opened with 2 no trumps, which her partner should certainly have raised to three. If North had then put in a game saver of four spades, East and West could either have collected a penalty of 450 or bid 4 no trumps which could be made. Even if North had opened with the somewhat unconventional bid of 1 spade, East and West could not have been kept out of a game bid.

The only real danger attached to opening three bids on this type of hand is that the partner may raise to 5 or 6 on considerable outside high card strength, in which case the opener will have to take the blame. But, as it becomes more generally understood that these bids should be made on distribution rather than high card strength, the danger will no longer exist.

Trading sentiment was more op-assert that the market trend is de-

Favourable market factors were that the textile workers are expected to end the strike before Monday, and that the Federal Re-first half of September were 7.2 per cent. above the corresponding period of last year.

An unfavourable factor was that the Federal Relief Administrator, Colonel Harry R. Hopkins, has announced that States and cities must bear a larger share of the relief expenditures, raising an extra U.S.
$100,000,000 within six months.—
